

Research Participants Wanted

Department of Applied
Behavioral Science
University of Kansas

Are you a caregiver for a toddler who is waiting for an autism assessment?

Looking for caregivers who are interested in participating in a semi self-paced video intervention for learning new ways of playing with their children. You will watch a series of videos and practice playing with your child, sharing your results with the researcher by video.

Caregiver Requirements: Internet access, video capabilities on a computer or tablet, infant and toddler toys, and a desire to play with your child!

Caregiver participants will receive financial compensation for their involvement.

Child requirements: 12-36 months old, not yet diagnosed with autism but referred for and waiting for an autism assessment.

For more information contact Kaitlin Brunt at kaitlinbrunt@ku.edu

Associated risks include discomfort learning new interaction strategies, discomfort with recording videos of yourself playing with your child and discomfort for your child interacting with an unfamiliar adult (the researcher).
